Dear Sample A Sample:

GameStop recently identified and addressed a security incident that may have involved your payment card information. We are providing this notice to inform you of the incident and to call your attention to some steps you can take to protect yourself. At GameStop, we value our customers and understand the importance of protecting customer personal information. We sincerely apologize for any inconvenience or concern this incident may cause.

What Happened

After receiving a report that data from payment cards used on www.GameStop.com may have been obtained by unauthorized individuals, we immediately began an investigation and hired a leading cybersecurity firm to assist us. Although the investigation did not identify evidence of unauthorized access to payment card data, we determined on April 18, 2017 that the potential for that to have occurred existed for certain transactions. Findings from the investigation suggest that, for customers who placed or attempted to place orders on our website from August 10, 2016 to February 9, 2017, information associated with the order being placed, including the customer's name, address, payment card number, expiration date and security code (CVV), may have been obtained by an unauthorized third-party. We are notifying you because you placed or attempted to place an order on www.GameStop.com during this time period using a payment card ending in 1234.

What We Are Doing

We take the security of our customer's personal information very seriously. Once we learned of this incident, we took immediate action including initiating an internal review, engaging independent forensic experts to assist us in the investigation and remediation of our systems, and alerting law enforcement. To help prevent this type of incident from happening again, we are continuing to take steps to strengthen the security of our network.

What You Can Do

We encourage that you remain vigilant to the possibility of fraud and identity theft by reviewing your financial statements and credit reports for any unauthorized activity. You should immediately report any unauthorized charges to your financial institution, as major credit card companies have rules that restrict them from requiring you to pay for fraudulent charges that are timely reported. You should also review the additional information on the following page on ways to protect yourself.
