Re: Notice of Data Breach

Dear Rand McNally Customer:

We know this is not news you want to receive. At Rand McNally, we'd much rather be sending you information about the best small towns to visit or tips to help you plan your next vacation.

However, we are writing to inform you of the possible unauthorized acquisition of your personal credit card information, what that means to you, how we are actively addressing the situation, and what you might do to protect yourself. If you have experienced any fraudulent charges on your card, the bank that issued the card may have already replaced your card and/or caught the charges on its own.

What Happened?

On February 28, 2017, we became aware of suspicious activity on the server for our e-commerce store. When you purchased anything via this website you entered information, including your credit card and other personal information. Through this breach, an unauthorized party may have been able to gain access to your credit card information by installing malware that obtained that information. Though we believe this party may have first gained access to credit card information around April 2016, we only recently discovered on or around April 11, 2017 that your information may have been collected as a result of the incident.

What Type of Information Was Involved?

The information that may have been collected included demographic information and personal credit card information such as billing and shipping address, phone number, the cardholder name, card number, card type, expiration date and CVV for transactions made between April 12, 2016 and March 2, 2017.

What We Are Doing

As soon as we discovered the unauthorized access, we began investigating the server and removed the malware to prevent any further potential access. We worked with leading cyber investigators to determine what happened and what information may be affected. The incident and pertinent details are being reported to the appropriate agencies, and we are fully cooperating with them. We have also been notifying those who may be affected as they are identified and providing them with information on the incident and what they can do to protect against possible fraud.

What You Can Do

Because Rand McNally takes the protection of your personal security very seriously, we are offering you access to 1 year of complimentary identity monitoring and identity restoration services through Experian at no cost to you. Information on these services and how you can enroll to receive them immediately are included within the enclosed Steps You Can Take to Further Protect Yourself.

For More Information

If you have questions or concerns that are not addressed in this letter, you may call the dedicated assistance line we've established regarding this incident. You may call the assistance line at 888-746-7079, Monday through Friday, 9:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. EDT (excluding U.S. holidays).

We apologize for any inconvenience this may have caused. Be assured that we have been working, and will continue working, diligently to avoid and mitigate any harm to you

Sincerely,

Stephen A. Fletcher
CEO

In addition to the above offer of services, we are providing this explanation of steps you can take to protect your information. As a precautionary measure, we recommend that you remain vigilant for incidents of fraud and identity theft by reviewing your account statements and credit reports closely. If you believe that your credit or debit card has been used, you should immediately contact your credit card company. The phone number to call is usually on the back of the credit or debit card. You may obtain a free copy of your credit report from each of the three major credit reporting agencies listed below once every 12 months by visiting <http://www.annualcreditreport.com> or calling toll-free 1-877-322-8228. You can also report any fraudulent activity or any suspected identity theft to proper law enforcement authorities, your state attorney general and/or the Federal Trade Commission. To file a complaint about identity theft with the FTC or to learn more, go to www.identitytheft.gov, call 1-877-ID-THEFT (1-877-438-4338).

Fraud Alert

We suggest you consider placing a fraud alert on your credit report. An initial fraud alert is free and will stay on your credit file for at least 90 days. The alert informs creditors of possible fraudulent activity within your report and requests that the creditor contact you prior to establishing any accounts in your name. If you would like to place a fraud alert on your credit report, contact any of the three credit reporting agencies using the contact information below. The Federal Trade Commission has a good website with an overview and guidance on this issue at <https://www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0497-credit-freeze-faqs>. You can also contact them at: Federal Trade Commission or write to: Federal Trade Commission, 600 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20580. Or, call 1-877-ID-THEFT.

Security Freeze Information

In some US states, you have the right to place a security freeze on your credit file. This will prevent new credit from being opened in your name without the use of a PIN number that is issued to you when you initiate the freeze. You can obtain further information regarding security freezes from the FTC and from any of the three credit reporting agencies listed below.
