Re: NOTICE OF DATA BREACH

Dear John Doe:

We are writing to provide you with information about a data incident involving shopPOPdisplays, Inc. You are receiving this letter because we have determined that your data may have been compromised in this incident.

What Happened

We are not aware that any user information was actually accessed or used in this incident, but we are providing notice to you out of an abundance of caution. We have been alerted by Miva Inc., which hosts our online order processing platform, that between April 8, 2018 and May 14, 2018 a malicious intruder inserted malware on Miva's servers supporting our online order processing platform. The malware may have enabled the intruder to capture credit card data and address information entered on shopPOPdisplays's order checkout page.

What Information Was Involved

As stated above, the intruder could have captured your credit card data entered on the order checkout page from the time period of April 8, 2018 through May 14, 2018. This could have included: address, email address, phone number, name, credit card number, credit card expiration date, and credit card CVV number.

What We Are Doing

Miva has removed the malware from the servers supporting our systems. We engaged a forensics firm to determine the source of the intruder's access to guard against similar intrusions in the future. We have notified PayPal, Visa, Mastercard, American Express, Discover, and consumer reporting agencies of this incident. We are reviewing all policies and procedures to ensure all necessary and appropriate security measures are taken to avoid any similar incident from occurring again. We have also required all users affected by the data incident to reset their passwords associated with their shopPOPdisplays accounts. Lastly, we are working with law enforcement to ensure that this situation is properly addressed.
